4. LEGAL FRAMEWORK

Harassment or discrimination on the grounds of race, gender, religion, political opinion, sex, pregnancy or potential pregnancy, marital status, physical or mental disability, sexual preference, national extraction or social origin, age, and/or family responsibilities is unlawful under the following Commonwealth and New South Wales anti discrimination and workplace legislation:

- Age Discrimination Act 2004 (Cth);
- Disability Discrimination Act 1992 (Cth);
- Racial Discrimination Act 1975 (Cth);
- Sex Discrimination Act 1984 (Cth);
- Fair Work Act 2009 (Cth); and
- Anti-Discrimination Act 1977 (NSW).

A contravention of any of these laws could result in legal action being taken against staff members and also expose the Diocese to liability.

5. WHAT IS WORKPLACE DISCRIMINATION?

Workplace discrimination is when someone is subject to unfair treatment in employment because they belong to a particular group of people or have a particular personal characteristic that has been specified in law as a ground of discrimination. Some grounds for discrimination recognised in State and Federal legislation include:

- sex or gender;
- marital status, pregnancy, potential pregnancy, parental status and family responsibility;
- sexual preference, sexuality or gender identity;
- disability, impairment or handicap;
- race, colour, national or ethno-religious origin, nationality, ethnicity, descent or ancestry;
- age;
- religious or political belief or activity;
- trade union activity;
- victimisation;
- personal association with or relation to any person who is identified on the basis of any of the above attributes.

There are two kinds of discrimination, direct and indirect.

Direct discrimination occurs if a person treats, or proposes to treat someone unfavourably due that person’s personal characteristics.

Indirect discrimination can occur when there is a rule or condition that is the same for everyone but in effect disadvantages people from a particular group more than people from other groups. The rule may seem equitable and unbiased at face value. A rule or condition will not be considered discriminatory if it’s reasonable in the circumstances.

Examples of Workplace Discrimination

Direct Discrimination	Indirect Discrimination
Refusing to employ someone because of their age despite being able to undertake the requirements of the position	Prescribing an inflexible working hours policy where such rigidity in hours is not required
Terminating someone’s employment because of their family responsibilities	Scheduling meetings or training sessions at times that would disadvantage people with carer’s responsibilities e.g. very early or very late in the day
Not promoting someone because of their disability despite being able to undertake the duties of the position	A requirement that all staff speak fluent English when this is not an inherent requirement for all jobs within the company

When Workplace Discrimination is not Unlawful

In some circumstances workplace discrimination will not be considered unlawful, such as:

- where the discrimination occurred because the person is unable to perform the inherent requirements of a position and no reasonable adjustments could have been made by the employer;
- where an act is taken against a person by an institution run in accordance with its religious beliefs, made in good faith and to avoid injury to the religious susceptibilities of adherents of that religion; and/or
- where there are genuine occupational requirements for a person of a particular sex, race or age to be appointed to a position.

6. WHAT IS WORKPLACE HARASSMENT?

Workplace harassment is conduct in the workplace that is:

- unwelcome, uninvited or unreciprocated;
- offensive, humiliating and/or intimidating; and
- is based on a ground of discrimination.

It can include verbal comments or abuse, physical contact, threats, displaying inappropriate and offensive images or documents, stalking, offensive communication, jokes and ridicule, propositions, and inappropriate initiation rites.

Sexual harassment is a form of harassment on the ground of sex or conduct of a sexual nature such as unwanted sexual advances, unwelcome requests for sexual favours or physical contact, derogatory sexual comments, taunts, intrusive questions and rumours.

Workplace harassment usually consists of a pattern of unwelcome behaviour. However, it can consist of just one act where this is of a serious nature. There is no requirement that the harasser intended to offend or harm in order for an action to be considered harassment or for the person harassed to inform the harasser that the conduct is unwelcome.

Workplace harassment, and in particular sexual harassment, does not include behaviour which is consensual, welcome and reciprocated.

Examples of Workplace Harassment

Verbal	Non-Verbal
Sexist or racist jokes	Suggestive looks or stares
Comments of a sexual nature	Offensive hand or body gestures
Repeated unwelcome invitations	Sexually explicit emails or posters
Imitating some-one’s accent	Invading some-one’s personal space

7. WHAT IS WORKPLACE BULLYING?

Workplace bullying is harassment that is not expressly linked to a ground of discrimination. Workplace bullying is persistent unwelcome and unreasonable behaviour, such as unwarranted or invalid criticism, fault finding, exclusion or isolation. It usually takes the form of less favourable treatment of a person by another or others in the workplace in the form of repeated conduct or a pattern that:

- insults,
- intimidates,
- threatens,
- undermines,
- offends,
- degrades, or
- humiliates.

Instances of workplace bullying are intended to cause physical and psychological distress to others. Bullying can occur at all levels in the workplace e.g. upwards, downwards or lateral and is identified if a reasonable person (an objective third party) would consider the behaviour to be bullying.

Bullying does not include:

- occasional differences of opinion or problems in working relationships;
- reasonable performance management processes including constructive feedback on performance;
- reasonable management decisions including monitoring of workflow; or
- reasonable disciplinary procedures.

Examples of Workplace Bullying

Physical	Psychological
Loud, abusive, threatening language	Silent treatment
Subjected to practical jokes	Assigning unpleasant or meaningless tasks unrelated to the position
Offensive phone messages, SMS and/or email	Deliberately withholding information that is vital to effective work performance
Constant ridicule or put downs in front of others	Exclusion or isolation

8. REPORTING WORKPLACE DISCRIMINATION, HARASSMENT OR BULLYING?

Staff members wishing to raise a complaint of workplace discrimination, harassment or bullying should do so by following the procedures outlined in the Dioceses Managing Workplace Complaints policy. As outlined in that policy, all complaints will be treated seriously, dealt with as soon as practicable and conducted in a fair, impartial and professional manner.
